

Internship / Working Student Packaging Development

Founded in Japan in 1887, Kao is passionate about making a difference in people's lives with our high-quality products and services. In the region Europe, Middle East, Africa (EMEA) Kao focuses on premium beauty brands across three distinct sectors: Kao Salon Division, Consumer Care Business and our London based boutique brand Molton Brown.

To support our Packaging Development team in Darmstadt, we always look for an Intern or Working Student (m/f/d) starting around March/April or September/October and for at least 6 months.

These tasks are waiting for you:

- You will support the team both in the development of new products and in day-to-day business.
- You will work independently on interdisciplinary packaging related topics (especially with regards to sustainability).
- You will carry out packaging tests in our laboratory and take responsibility for their assessment, documentation, and presentation.

What we are expecting from you:

- You are at least in the 4th semester of your studies in packaging technology or a similar engineering course of study.
- You have gained some practical experience in the field of packaging technology or have already completed an internship.
- You have a very good level of written and spoken German and English.
- You like to work independently, and you are a proactive, open, reliable and communicative person.

What we offer:

- An internship with great challenges as well as responsibility for your own small projects.
- Practical insights into the day-to-day business of an internationally established company in the field of packaging technology.
- A positive working atmosphere in an international company and a lot of very nice and supportive colleagues.
